

Ray Cooper had been living in a small wooden house in Sweden since 2000. The love of winter, the love of Swedish fiddle tunes and the love of a woman took him there. Ray has a rock past and toured the world with Oysterband for many years. In 2013 he decided to go solo and has never looked back. He is the guy that sings with a cello, a committed songwriter, storyteller and multi-instrumentalist.

'I am a romantic, half Scottish half English, I have no home town, I think of myself as a north European now.